The London & South East Branch of REMS organised a meeting in January 2020 as part of their highly popular series of 'At Homes'. The topic on this occasion is Meteorology and this was a joint meeting with the Institute of Physics.

There was a total of six presentations by industry-leading experts covering the historical aspects of modern-day meteorology, the physics of the atmosphere including its dynamics, meteorological observations, forecasting and the delivery of weather forecasts.

The day culminated with reception during which Peter Gibbs formerly of the BBC, presented a weather forecast with an opportunity to see behind the scenes.
