The RMetS Yorkshire Centre welcomes three PhD students from the Institute for Climate and Atmospheric Science (ICAS) to showcase their PhD projects. ICAS is at the forefront of global research with over 90% of our research classed as 'world-leading' or 'internationally excellent' (Research Excellence Framework 2014).

In this talk you will hear about three very different PhD projects, get to know their overarching aims, discover the challenges faced by the researchers or challenges they have successfully overcome as these PhD students talk you through their research journeys.

This talk is a must-see for anyone thinking about doing a PhD, especially in a field related to Earth and Environment and anyone else who might be interested to get an insight into the latest challenges of this field. The challenges we face today will shape tomorrow's research.
